THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

Too Much To Expect

Washington, Nov. 3.—It is said that a new appreciation of the gravity of his job has been developed by the President and with it a desire for more aid in grappling the great problems that confront him in both foreign and domestic fields. The cancellation of scheduled trips is one evidence of this. But there are others.

THIS attitude there is hope—not too much. If Mr. Truman were a far bigger man than he is; if he were surrounded by the best brains in the country, and had no thought of politics, the situations with which he has to deal still would be very difficult. As things are, some of these situations on the one front are not far from appalling. No one questions the President's purposes. He wants to do right. He is neither a crackpot nor a radical. He knows full well the dangers of inflation, the necessity for retrenchment and the penalties of unchecked spending. Yet, his administration drifts in those directions even while he recognizes and points out the perils.

SEEN by some reasonably astute observers here, there are no fundamental troubles with Mr. Truman. One is the caliber of his advisers and department heads. With the exception of Mr. Charles E. Jones and Mr. John Snyder, the members of his "inner circle" are politicians—and little else. There is hardly a statesman in the cabinet. The best man he found when he came in—Mr. Leo Crowley—has been out. Not many of the others measure up. He sees, of course, many visitors who express their views and opinions. But, of the men close to him, who see him constantly, with whom he advises and leans up, the men who are his intimates—of these there is not one sufficiently endowed with judgment and equipped by experience to be of presidential help. Exception could be made of Secretary of State Byrnes who, however, is so tightly down with the perplexities of foreign politics that he is unable to function in the field wherein he was trained.

OTHER Truman trouble is centered to be the nature of his performance. When he became President he was a man of no special talents. He was a representative of the Veterans' Administration sub-regional office, Philadelphia, today opened an office of the office of Burgess Jacob C. Schmidt, Sr., in the Bristol Municipal Building, Pond and Mulberry streets.

Wardrop will be in the Bristol office daily except Saturday from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. Saturday from 9 a. m. to 12 noon, to aid veterans and their dependents.

Wardrop will give advice and assistance to veterans of all wars and to general public, relative to their rights and benefits under laws administered by the Veterans Administration. Other general information will be given.

Cracken Post, American Legion, co-operating and the office of Burgess Schmidt was voluntarily aided by him, so that the veterans would have a centrally located office.

Carl Pfeifer, who was killed during the invasion of France in June, 1944, and who has been hospitalized since that time, pending 30 days with his mother, Mrs. Frank Pfeifer, West Circle, will make the trip Saturday to Maguire General Hospital, Richmond, Va., in Bucks Co. Resene and ambulance.

GLEANED BY SCRIBES

Given recognition for 20 years of perfect attendance at Rotary, Dr. George T. Hayman and Hillborn Darlington, members of the Doylestown club were presented medals at the meeting at Doylestown, Wednesday evening. The presentations were made by Webster S. Achey, who congratulated Dr. Hayman and Mr. Darlington for attaining this record.

During the business session, Charles H. Reed was commended for having made the drive for funds for the war memorial and the student loan a success.

The speaker at the meeting was Junior Rotarian "Jack" Rosenberg, a member of the band of the local high school. He spoke of the orchestra and band of the local high school.

During the past eight years, under the direction of Earl J. Frick, said Rosenberg, the orchestra increased in number to 26 and the band to 42. This year for the first time the marching band includes girls as well as boys.

All officers were re-elected at the annual meeting of the Ivyland branch of the Needlework Guild of America held in Ivyland fire house, on Tuesday afternoon.

They are as follows: President, Mrs. George Hobensack; vice-president, Mrs. Cyrus Blackin; secretary, Mrs. John M. Finney; and treasurer, Mrs. Gove Yerkes.

Opening ceremonies at the meeting included the roll call of 37 directors.

Mrs. Gove Yerkes gave an account of the meetings of presidents of various guilds in Philadelphia in June. She represented the president of the local guild at that meeting.

Displayed at the meeting this week were 1893 garments for men, women and children.

Failing to regain consciousness as the result of a skull fracture received in a fall while painting at the garage of J. J. Conroy, Inc., Doylestown, Charles Michener, aged 57, formerly a resident of Doylestown, but who more recently lived at North Willow Grove died Thursday in the U. S. Naval Hospital, Philadelphia.

In some unknown manner, Michener, a veteran of World War I, lost his footing and fell a distance of about 30 feet. He was taken to the Emergency Hospital, Doylestown, and later was transferred to the Naval Hospital.

AN OPEN LETTER

TO BRISTOL'S REPUBLICAN VOTERS:

The campaign now ending has been conducted under unusual circumstances. At its outset, public attention was centered almost exclusively on the war. The climax of hostilities, peace in Europe, victory in the Pacific, and the start at disbanding our armed services all have been in the forefront of the public's mind at a period when ordinarily the questions of local government would have received full and complete interest.

The end of hostilities has released a host of new social, economic and labor problems which have helped take attention away from the campaign.

Nevertheless, your Campaign Committee is gratified to report much success in bringing the voters' thinking home to the important problems of Bristol's affairs. A great deal of factual material has been laid before the men and women of the Borough, both through the newspaper columns and by direct mail to registered voters.

The several meetings which have been held indicate that this data was well received, and that a great many persons who other wise might not have heeded these questions have been aroused to the need for a determined stand if Bristol is to continue to have sound, forward-looking and economical government under Republican principles.

In round numbers, there are 3500 Republican and 1700 Democratic registered voters in Bristol.

This means that the Republican Party cannot be defeated unless a large number of its members leave their party and vote for an untried and inexperienced group of candidates whose personal records give no assurance of their ability or intention of maintaining the high standards of Bristol administration which have characterized it for fifty years under the Republicans.

Can Bristol's registered Republicans afford to take this chance?

More and more of the men and women who fought out the war on foreign shores are returning to their homes. These young people have done their part to make this a better world. Those of us who face the duty of voting tomorrow should realize that we too have a great contribution which we can make for building a bigger, brighter and better Bristol.

Good government in any nation begins on the home-town level. We must keep our smaller houses of government in order before we can hope to correct national mistakes in policy and finance.

Tomorrow is the time when the voters of Bristol are to choose between keeping good government under the Republican Party, or experimenting with inexperience.

Good government in Bristol is in danger from the odd circumstance that it has been here so long it may be taken for granted.

Apathy on the part of Republican voters is the only danger it has to fear.

We take this means of urging all Republican voters to be sure to vote tomorrow. Many an election has been

THREAT OF DISASTER

Undeclared civil war is raging in war-torn China, with more than 1,000,000 government and Communist troops fighting for control of eleven key provinces in various parts of the land. No one has come forward with a satisfactory explanation of where the communists have obtained the supplies necessary to engage in warfare on a scale so ambitious.

Government spokesmen say the communists initiated general offensives on various fronts. A particularly sad feature of the situation is that both sides had agreed through negotiators that China's only road to reconstruction lies in unity, democracy and peace and that civil war would bring disaster upon the country and its hundreds of millions of inhabitants.

But despite this agreement, actual hostilities have been permitted to get under way on a dangerously large scale and the obvious disaster has been invited. If the two factions can get together to the extent of agreeing in principle on what is best for the future of China, it seems reasonable to suppose that agreement in detail would not be too difficult.

Full realization of what civil war means to the best interests of China should move communist leaders to put forth every possible effort to avert national ruin. It is not too late for these revolutionaries to retrace their steps.

THIS SCRAMBLED SEASON

Even in normal times it is difficult to generate a feeling of envy for the sports experts whose job it is to rank the nation's leading football teams each week. No game has a larger share of upsets and the standings are regularly scrambled each Saturday afternoon. At this stage of the present season the mixup is so complete that it is hard to see how anyone can say where the teams belong.

It is simple enough, to be sure, to assign top places to powerful and all-conquering Army or Notre Dame. But what about Navy, which barely managed to eke out a victory over Penn in the last 25 seconds of play? Where place Penn, which proved itself the better and stronger eleven for all but the last few minutes of the game? Who is going to figure out the status of Purdue, which walloped Ohio State one week-end and took a walloping itself from a twice-defeated team the next, or of Ohio State which bounced back from defeat by whipping powerful Minnesota 20-7?

This is the sort of thing which has the experts and the dopests biting their fingernails and tearing their hair, and it is happening all over the lot.

ECHOES OF THE PAST
(By Courier Staff Member)

Review of the news as it appeared in the Bucks County Gazette issue dated at Bristol June 20, 1889. The Gazette, a weekly newspaper published in Bristol, was discontinued following its merger with the Courier.

The Evening Journal, after a struggle for nearly a year to gain a foothold in this town, has ceased to exist. On Saturday its last issue was published. . . . Bristol does not appear to have yet sufficient growth to sustain a daily newspaper.

In the first ward there are 19 places for the sale of liquor. The ward went wet by 19 majority.

The majority against Prohibition in Bucks County is 4,305. The districts that voted in favor of the amendment were Buckingham, Falls, Langhorne, Upper and Lower Makefield, Middletown, Morrisville, Newtown borough and Newtown township, Solebury and Wrightstown. . . .

The Burlington, N. J., authorities have passed an ordinance prohibiting the posting of bills and signs on trees, telegraph or electric light poles, or upon any fences within the city limits unless permission has been given by the owners that such property can be so used.

The total amount subscribed for the New Hope extension of the North East Pennsylvania Railroad from Hartsville to New Hope is nearly $35,000. The sum of $30,000 is wanted by the railroad company and if it is not obtained the matter of building the road will be probably abandoned.

A union meeting of the Solebury, Wrightstown and Horsham Farmers Clubs and their invited friends will be held on Thursday, August 8th, at a place to be designated by the Wrightstown club. The officers will be as follows: President of the day, George G. Atkinson, of the Wrightstown Club; vice-presidents, William C. Blackfan, of Solebury, and William J. Kirk, of the Horsham club; eddress for the day, Florence J. Kirk, of Solebury; treasurer, Joseph Paul, of Horsham; with Lewis Smith and Joseph Mattison, assistants. Committee on music, W. M. CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE

When they came downstairs, Agnes, Howard and Lucienne were having cocktails on the terrace. Lucienne was lying on a bamboo chaise. She had changed to a green linen slacks suit, put a lei of white shells around her slender neck. "Oh, this feels good," she sighed. "One of the nurses told me to soak my feet in salts and was it a godsend."

"What kind of nurse has Lucienne turned out to be?" Howard asked Gail.

"An excellent one," Gail said. "Of course, she's had a couple of eaves. There was the time she washed a thermometer in hot water, and almost fainted when she took a seemingly-normal child's temperature and found it a hundred and six. . . ."

They heard the tinkle of the telephone. "I'll take it," Lucienne said swiftly. When she returned her face was downcast. "Doctor Kramer can't make it for supper, Agnes. He's tied up until nine."

Agnes' face puckered. "I don't like having you see so much of him, anyway, Lucienne. He's much too old for you."

"Don't be silly, Agnes," Lucienne replied crossly. "He's very little older than Buntz or Mark or Tom, and he's lots more interesting!"

When they had helped themselves at the buffet, Howard sat down near Gail. "How's the Springdale job working out?" he asked.

"I'm quite optimistic about it," she replied. "Cousin Howard, you have considerable property in Springdale. Does it include a vacant house that could be used for a day nursery?"

"Why, I don't know, Gail. I'd have to see about it."

"I wish you would," she said. "It seems to me that the most crying need in Springdale right now is a day nursery for the young children of mothers who are working at the war factories. It isn't fair to the youngsters who are left alone, and the mothers are less efficient if they are worried. That's important to you, with so many of them in your plant."

"It seems like rather a big project," he said thoughtfully. "It may be more than you can tackle."

Her eyes darkened. "I don't see why," she said stubbornly. "If I get cooperation."

They looked up, as Dr. Ralph Kramer came in. He greeted Howard and Agnes with the proper amount of deference, nodded to Reyna and Gail, and turned his bold, magnetic smile on Lucienne.

"Did you get jammed up?" she asked, unable to keep the happy, possessive note out of her young voice. She linked her arm with his and led him to the buffet. "What 'd you come to see?"

"I'm here to see you," he said, and he looked at her. "I'm here to see you."

"I'm here to see you," he said, and he looked at her. "I'm here to see you."

What is the matter with me, Gail thought. I'm thinking like Mrs. Gentry.

She was grateful for the sight of Lucienne and Ralph Kramer, dancing cheek to cheek.

"Having fun?" Ralph asked, pleasantly. It was the first time he'd ever been more than civil to her. Was he warning her silently: "Don't interfere in my love affair, Gail. . . ."

They danced out to the balcony overlooking the palisades. "Let's stand here a moment," Gail suggested to Steve.

The music blurred and faded away. Gail turned to find him smiling at her. In a moment, she knew, he would kiss her. And she wouldn't resent it. The night and the stars and the music. . . .

She said quickly, trying to dispel the charged intensity of the moment, "I'm worried about Lucienne."

Stephen understood her motive; bowed to it. "That youngster will look out for herself," he said. "She's pretty practical, despite the gloss. Now, you—"

"You're utterly different. You stride along with your head in the clouds, you'd beat your head against a stone wall if it were for a cause you believed in."

"Am I that—dull?"

"On the contrary," he said. "You are a most glamorous woman because of your terrific sincerity, and talent for being yourself."

"Suppose I took you seriously?"

"You should. I'll tell you more about yourself at the picnic Sunday."

She turned back toward the dance floor. "We should be leaving. What's happened to Lucienne and Ralph?"

"Perhaps they're looking at the stars, too."

"Steve, when I said I was worried about Lucienne, it was because Doctor Kramer is pretty deeply involved with one of the hospital nurses."

"Sacred and profane love," Stephen teased her.

"It isn't funny," Gail retorted. "The girl is taking it to heart. From what I've heard at the hospital, Kramer's stuck to her for a couple of years, and I suppose she feels that eventually they might marry."

"Then she ought to be experienced enough to know how to handle a rival," he said.

She made a face. "The way you men stick together!"

He laughed. "Why, Gail, how feminine of you! Don't you know you can't fight nature with words, particularly when a man like Kramer's involved? He has been up to father's apartment quite often recently, and I can't say that I like him much."

Don't "monkey" with the fire door

OPENING the fire door may seem like an easy way to regulate your fire but it's really a FUEL-WASTING move. Also, it doesn't pay to "monkey" with the Turn Damper to regulate the fire for daily changes in temperature. Once you've located the ideal position for the Turn Damper it's best to remember HANDS OFF unless there is an extreme temperature change.

Fuel Saving Starts With CONTROL. Ask us about getting you an Automatic Heat Regulator—the "electric brain" that saves fuel by automatically controlling dampers.

The Republican Record in Bristol

The one major issue of this campaign is local government. Odd-numbered years such as this are set apart for election of county, borough, township and school district officials. This is done to separate purely local problems from the confusing issues of State and Nation. For the men and women of Bristol, the big question is what is best for their home community.

The Republican Party, which has had charge of the Bristol government for many years, is proud of its record and proud of its candidates, shown on this page. The record is one of accomplishment at low cost. In nearly all fields of service, Bristol is on a par with the best, and is ahead of most communities its size. Let's look at some facts:

Water Supply

Many communities similar to Bristol are facing heavy costs to modernize their water systems. Bristol has an up-to-date plant, now nearly 90 per cent on the finest artesian water—and has it financed. The plant is making money and cutting taxes, not raising them.

Sewage System

Newspapers are full of stories about how Pennsylvania communities must spend huge sums for new sewage systems. Bristol owns a good one, in operation, paid for. It is equipped with a modern disposal unit. Bristol led the way. The borough also has an industrial drain.

Streets

Nearly all of Bristol's streets are hard-surfaced and in good condition. Two splendid concrete roads run the full length of the Borough. Cross streets are hard-surfaced. Congestion in the business area is relieved by presence of large parking area free to public.

Parks and Playgrounds

The recent addition to the Borough's parks will give Bristol residents access to unusually large Borough and State owned public recreation grounds. Silver Lake Park has been improved.

Police Department

An extremely low record for crime and disorder, and the speedy two-way radio-controlled prowl car service, show how well served the community is in the matter of police protection.

Fire Department

Under the whole-hearted cooperation of paid and volunteer firemen, with modern equipment and an excellent alarm system, fire hazards of the community are kept at an exceptionally low level.

Tax Rate

Taxes have been reduced a third in twelve years: in 1933, the rate was cut from 14 mills to 13½; in 1934, assessment rate cut 10%; in 1937, rate cut from 13½ to 13; in 1941, rate cut from 13 to 11. Here are what some other communities pay: Warren, Darby and Charleroi, 17; Old Forge, 18; Dickson City and Conshohocken, 20.

Bonded Debt

As of last December 31, the net bonded debt was $110,957.80. This is a reduction of about $250,000 since 1935. Here are typical net bonded debts of other communities similar to Bristol: Yeadon, $212,833; Conshohocken, $167,184; Norristown, $411,705; Pottstown, $511,919; Wyomissing, $259,500; Collingdale, $190,022.

Assessment Rate

Some city and borough governments get a low tax rate by pushing up the assessments. In Bristol, both are low. The local assessment rate is 40 per cent. Here are the rates in similar Pennsylvania communities: Ellwood City, 70 per cent; Indiana, 60; Munhall, 70; Tamaqua, 75; Chambersburg, 80; West Chester, 60; Carlisle, 75.

All the above points are proof of the truth of the Republican Party's basic message this year: "Under Republican administrations, Bristol's affairs have been well run at low cost." For years, the borough's books have been closed annually with the same notation—all bills paid, a cash balance on hand. Republican officials have kept the Borough on a pay-as-you-go and a live-within-income basis.

It is never wise to drop experienced and successful administrators in order to try out inexperienced and unproven ones. For these reasons, the men and women of Bristol have only one answer to the question: "How shall I vote?"

Vote straight Republican. Put a cross (X) opposite the word Republican where it appears on the ballot in black type, thus:

REPUBLICAN	X

'LITTLE BROWN JUG' GOES BACK TO BURLINGTON FOR ANOTHER SEASON WHEN BRISTOL HIGH LOSES GAME

The little brown jug will remain the property of Burlington High School for another season.

The Blue Devils decided that on the local field, Saturday afternoon, by taking Bristol High into camp, 19-13, in a thrilling contest which saw the Bunnies make an uphill fight to attempt to snatch the game from the Jerseyites.

It was the thirteenth "Little Brown Jug" affair and now the Burlington team has six victories to Bristol's four. Three of the contests have ended in deadlocks and Bristol hasn't had possession of the jug since 1935 when they beat the Jersey team, 9-0.

Bristol failed to capitalize on the cracks in being beaten by the visitors. A tragic first half spelled the doom for the Bristolians but it was an alerted second half Bunny elevator which almost turned the tide of the tilt.

The Burlington team committed eight fumbles in the game and all of these were recovered by Bristol players. In addition to this several of the Burlington passes were intercepted. Bristol also fumbled on several occasions but managed to recover them.

Failure to stop the passing attack of Johnny Martin to "Ching" Chemiengo and a spectacular 98-yard run by the former caused the local team to go down to defeat. Other than that, Burlington was stymied although on several occasions, Harris and Martin did get off for runs.

It wasn't until the second half that Bristol's offense began to click. They were held without a first down in the first half and during this time gained but two yards from scrimmage. But after the rest period, the strong Burlington line began to bulge and Bristol whipped over two touchdowns and was in possession of the ball during most of the playing. Burlington being deep in its territory most of the game.

The Bunnies chalked up eight first downs during the second half drive which was enough to tie the Burlington team in this department. Burlington had six first downs in the first half and two more during the latter half of the contest. Bristol tried 19 passes and completed five, while the Jersey team went into the air 21 times and completed nine passes with Chemiengo being on the receiving end of seven.

When Jersey backfield ace, Martin, crossed Bristol's goal line early in the first period, it was the first touchdown scored against Bristol on its home field since November 20, 1943.

It was a thrilling 98-yard run which enabled Martin to score. He had fumbled a Bristol kick on his two-yard line while attempting to run to the right. The Bristol ends were blocked in so he had plenty of time to pick up the ball. By this time, he decided to reverse his field and had the entire Bristol team sucked in on the right as he ran along the left side of the field and scored without a hand being laid on him. Trava went in to drop-kick the extra point but he failed.

Bristol had received a "break" early in the contest when Harris fumbled the kickoff and Accardi recovered on the 47. It was kicking from here that the ball went to the 2-yard line where Martin made his beautiful run behind nice interference.

It was the opening up of a passing attack which aided Burlington to register its second score. Bristol had just completed a pass but a fumble took place and Burlington recovered on the 40. Martin threw a pass to Braccalente who caught the ball while on his knees. The Bunnies were then set back 15 yards via a penalty. Martin whipped a pass to Chemiengo who was downed on the Bristol 2. Martin made an end run, good for 10 yards. Harris was hit hard and fumbled and Bristol again got the ball. After an exchange of punts, Burlington got the pigskin at midfield.

As the second quarter opened, Martin heaved a long aerial to Chemiengo who caught the ball on the run and scored unmolested. Trava again was sent into the game and this time drop-kicked the extra point to make the count, 13-0.

The Burlington coach figured that he would rest his regulars and give his reserves an opportunity to play when another scoring chance came within a few minutes before the close of the half. After a Burlington boot rolled beyond the end zone, a penalty and a loss on an end run pushed Bristol back 10 yards to the 10-yard line. Here Lelinski kicked out to the 28 and in came the regular Blue Devils backfield. Martin threw a pass to Chemiengo who was stopped on the seven-yard line. Two more passes, not intended to Chemiengo, were incomplete. But on the third try, Martin aimed his throw at Chemiengo who caught the ball over the goal line for the touchdown. Trava missed the extra point try and the count was 19-0.

Bristol really did not go to work until after the start of the second half and were still continuing their drive when the contest came to a close. The opening kickoff was fumbled by Michaels and Harris fell on it to give the Bunnies possession of the pigskin on the Jerseyites' 38. But Lelinski was forced to kick and it rolled out on the 16. Two plays forced Burlington back and Gennett kicked out to his 35. Lelinski tossed a pass to Caucci who in turn lateraled to Harms for a first down on the 15. But on the next play, Michaels intercepted a pass on his 1-yard line. Gennett then kicked out to the 28. But Martin intercepted a Bristol pass and Burlington had the ball on its 15. Gennett kicked out and Bristol had to start their drive on their 40.

An exchange of punts followed and finally Gennett kicked out of bounds on Bristol's 25. Centonze cracked the Burlington line and ran to the Devils' 35 before being tackled from the rear by Ulmer. Lelinski hit the line for 6 yards and Coles made it a first down on the 26. Bristol took a 5-yard penalty and a pass failed. Burlington was penalized 15 yards to their six-yard line. Lelinski made four yards as the quarter closed. On the first play of the fourth period, Centonze plunged over for the score. He also hit the line for the extra point to make the score, 19-7.

Bristol scored again before the tilt was over. They started their march after Gennett kicked to their 22. Centonze ploughed at the line and netted 10 yards and a first down on his 32. Lelinski made two yards at end and a short pass, Lelinski to Capriotti, was good for 5 more yards. A triple pass, Centonze to Lelinski to Accardi caught Burlington off-guard and was good for 40 yards to the Burlington 28. Centonze lost two yards but Lelinski threw a pass to Coles which was completed on the 17-yard line. Coles made five yards on an end run and Accardi came up with a first down on the five yard line. Centonze was given a hole big enough for a truck to drive through as he went over for the score. Lelinski missed the extra point and the score was 19-13. Bristol tried a short kick which worked successfully after the kick-off as the locals received possession of the ball at mid-field. They tried a pass and failed but on the second attempt Accardi caught it but could not get away as the game ended.

Phillips Scored on End Runs Aided by Some Fine Blocking

Two touchdowns by Tommy Phillips paved the way for a Morrisville victory over Princeton High on the latter's field. Final score was 19-9.

Phillips scored on end runs, aided by some fine blocking on the part of "Jim" Harms. In the second period, Phillips set up his own touchdown by intercepting a pass.

A Political Orphan?

The Democratic candidate for tax collector of Bristol Township has just mailed a letter and marked ballot to the voters. These were printed and mailed first class postage.

But here's the pay-off.

If you are a voter in the Township, you probably received one of the letters. Get it out and look at it again, and verify this statement: NOT ONCE IN THE 300-WORD LETTER DOES THE CANDIDATE TELL WHAT POLITICAL PARTY HE BELONGS TO. His letter is clearly labelled "A Personal Letter," and is on special stationery, not that of the Democratic Party. The accompanying marked ballot contains only one cross—the one opposite the candidate's own name.

Is he ashamed of his party? Does he feel it to be a political liability? Is he a one-man army, more important in his own estimation than any party?

Men and women of Bristol Township have a chance to vote for ONE candidate for Tax Collector who isn't ashamed of his party. He is Joseph O. Seader, a Republican and proud of it. Marked ballots for him will be marked the way every candidate's ballots ought to be marked, not merely opposite his own name, but in his party column as well.

IF THE DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATE FOR TAX COLLECTOR IS UNWILLING TO TAKE A CHANCE ON THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY, WHY SHOULD YOU VOTE TO EXTEND ITS POLITICAL POWER?
